DUNCAN KENNEDY TO SPEAK AT THE LAW SCHOOL

On Wednesday, January 21, 1987, at 12:30 p.m., Professor Duncan Kennedy of Harvard Law School will speak at IIT Chicago-Kent. Professor Kennedy is one of the founders of the Critical Legal Studies movement. Much of his writing is a criticism of legal education. One of his best known booklets is entitled "Legal Education and the Reproduction of Hierarchy: A Polemic Against the System."

We promise a provocative presentation by a provocative speaker. In an article about Harvard Law School in a 1984 issue of New Yorker magazine, Calvin Trillin wrote:

"When people at Harvard try to explain how the faculty changed from a place where just about everyone agreed - or at least, expressed his disagreement in a polite way - they almost always mention the arrival, in the early Seventies, of three young faculty members: Duncan Kennedy, Morton Horwitz, and Roberto Unger." He goes on to describe Professor Kennedy as someone "who can turn out slightly antic left-wing slogans practically as a parlor trick, the way some people can recite the verses to old songs."

If you are interested in an analysis of the deficiencies of American legal education, be sure to attend Professor Kennedy's talk at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, January 21, 1987 in room 101.

CENTER FOR LAW AND COMPUTERS

Laser Printer Usage

Please note the following guidelines in using the laser printer in room 643:

1. Maximum printout is 10 copies for one-page documents and three copies of multiple-page documents.
2. The laser printer is available for faculty, staff, and student use. However, due to the cost of toner, supplies, and maintenance, 10 cents per copy must be paid even if you bring your own paper.
3. Because of time constraints, generally faculty and staff will have priority over students. The Computer Center staff will make every effort to minimize conflicts.

Please note that multiple copies of your assignments are not to be printed; instead print a SINGLE copy then make photocopies of your work.
